2008 Law School Summer Boot Camp for Students of Color

Everyone admitted to law school has demonstrated similar intelligence, commitment and effort. What distinguishes "A" students is study skills and habits, access to legal information, analytical and test-taking skills. All these are skills and abilities that can be learned and improved on. In our more than 35 years of experience of helping students-of-color succeed, we have seen the impact that intense preparation can have on a student's ability to excel. In a competitive environment like law school, where grades are given based on how a person performs compared to the other students in the class, it is essential the entering law students-of-color be appropriately prepared.

The Summer Boot Camp (<http://www.thejdproject.org/Excelling/BootCamp/index.htm>) is an online distance learning program designed to provide that intense preparation. The Boot Camp teaches students to study effectively for law school, introduces students to the writing, thinking and test-taking skills needed to excel on law school exams, and builds a network of academic support that crosses school boundaries. The participants will work on the study skills, strategies and techniques they will need to achieve their goals as law students.

This is a 100 hour online program. It is $600 (Compared to $2000 for a 40 hour program by BarBri). Admission is on a rolling basis till the program is filled. Because of the intense nature of this program it is important that students start as early in the summer as possible, preferably by June 1st. For more information, contact Ms. Brenda Randall, Volunteer Director and Admission Coordinator, admin@thejdproject.org.

The CUFELaw School Autumn Semester Program in Beijing, China

The CUFELaw School Autumn Semester Program in Beijing (the Program) operates in connection with a collaborative student exchange program with the University of Maryland School of Law and the Maastricht University Faculty of Law. Law students from around the world are eligible to study in Beijing in the fall semester with students from the CUFELaw School, the University of Maryland, and Maastricht University. The Program cultivates a diverse learning environment in which the different cultural and legal backgrounds of the students and faculty enrich the study of comparative law, and is one of the few academic programs in China in which visiting students study in the same classroom with Chinese students. All courses are conducted in English.

The Program begins with foundation courses on the Chinese Legal System and Comparative Law, offering students an unparalleled opportunity to learn the basics of Chinese law and comparative research methodology from CUFELaw's renowned faculty. Thereafter, the focus shifts to business law, with courses such as Select Topics in Chinese Commercial Law, Comparative Anti-Monopoly Law, Foreign Direct Investment in China, Comparative Commercial Law, Comparative Government Procurement Law, and even a Business Law Trial Competition. The specific courses offered in a particular year will depend on professor availability and student demand. On and off campus housing is available, and site visits to legal institutions and points of interest are incorporated into the program. Students may also study Mandarin Chinese as part of the program (subject to additional costs), and internships in Beijing may be available. It is recommended that students have at least one year of academic training in law before entering the program. Students who successfully complete the Program will receive a Certificate in Comparative Business Law from the CUFELaw School. Information on the program is also available at www.law.umaryland.edu/china.

The Baker Donelson Diversity Scholarship Program

Baker Donelson is pleased to announce that our firm has created a new scholarship program for diverse law school students. The Baker Donelson Diversity Scholarship Program will award three scholarships annually to minority law school students who have completed their first year of law school. We will award each recipient a salaried second year summer associate position in one of the Firm's offices, and, after successful completion of the summer associate position, a $10,000 scholarship during the students' third year of law school.

We are committed to ensuring that both our Firm and our profession are represented by attorneys with a diversity of backgrounds. Enhancing opportunities for diverse law school students is crucial to fulfilling that commitment. This program not only helps minority students defray the cost of law school, but also offers them the opportunity to acquire valuable experience in the legal profession through a paid summer associate position.

Applications for the Baker Donelson Diversity Scholarship Program are currently being accepted and are due by June 2. Students interested in applying should contact Rebecca Simon, the Firm's Director of Recruiting, at rsimon@bakerdonelson.com.
